

Cook sailed up the coast and anchored at “Stingray Bay”, which they later renamed “Botany Bay” because of the great variety of plants growing there.

